- A New Day Out for Groups in the English Lake District -

The team at Lowther Castle has created a collection of experiences to enable group visitors to gain an insight into the world past & present of this magnificent estate.

Nothing will prepare you for the scale and beauty of Lowther Castle, set in a quintessential English parkland landscape. A remarkable ruined Gothic castle set in ancient Gardens – now an award-winning attraction. Your clients will leave feeling both enlightened and inspired not just by the setting of Lowther – which occupies a stunning and unspoilt corner of the Lake District National Park - but also by the story of the castle and gardens' transformation.

The restoration of Lowther Castle & Gardens is a remarkable story. In 1999, Lowther's gardens were overrun with weeds; the castle, deroofed in 1957, was derelict. Today, the castle ruins are planted as a garden while the remainder of the gardens, though still in the early stages of restoration, are winning wide acclaim in horticultural circles.

And Lowther is full of stories. Visitors interested in gardens and history will find lots to enjoy – so too will visitors interested in colourful characters. The family has lived in this spot since the 12th century and over those years, has had its fair share of eccentric and exciting moments. History, horticulture, architecture and fun. All in all, a unique attraction with a great deal to offer.

Take a look at the experiences currently available. Choose a simple visit; combine the visit with an insightful Garden tour and delightful dining; or make a day of it and book a visit to Lowther Castle & Gardens followed by a relaxing cruise on one of the Lake District's most beautiful and peaceful lakes, Ullswater.

Lowther Castle is very conveniently located - a stone's throw from Ullswater (only 5 miles away) and only 15 minutes from the M6 (J40). 30 minutes from Carlisle, with the Scottish border only 45 minutes away: a perfect place to break the journey while travelling north or south.

The team looks forward to your enquiry. They can tailor a visit to your needs and thus ensure you have a highly memorable visit to Lowther Castle & Gardens.
